

On Monday 12th March Foundation Stage pupils and staff were visited by four police officers from the Metropolitan Police who came to talk to us about the important things they do to help people. As well as arresting people if they break the law they also help people with directions and help to keep everyone in the community safe. Some of us were lucky enough try on one of the police officer's helmets while others got to hold their baton or speak into the walkie-talkie. We even got to test how strong the officer's shield was by throwing beanbags at it! The best part of the visit was probably when we got to hear how loud the police sirens were close up and watching the blue lights flash and swirl. We learnt so much from the visit and had so much fun. Before they left we thanked the officers for coming to visit us.
